

Karen Marshall

Corporate Director of Governance and Compliance

Karen has been with whg since 2015 and is the Corporate Director of Governance and Compliance. She is currently responsible for health and safety, governance, risk and compliance and holds the position of Company Secretary for the Group.

Karen spent her early career working for the energy regulator, Ofgem, where she worked on privatisation of the electricity industry and the roll out of competition. This included responsibility for measures to protect vulnerable customers. She also played a key role in delivering government targets for renewable energy.

Karen has more than 16 years experience of working in social housing. She moved from energy regulation to housing regulation, where she was an Account Manager at the Housing Corporation, working with associations who were under supervision. In 2007, she moved to Stafford and Rural Homes as Head of Governance.

Since being at whg she has lead on a review that overhauled the governance arrangements, has developed a risk management framework and project managed the work to ensure compliance with GDPR.

Away from work, Karen enjoys travelling and cooking. Her favourite is Thai food.

For the latest updates, follow Karen on Twitter @whgkarenm